April 1, 2008

PHILADELPHIA --- Senior citizens can apply for SEPTA Senior Transit Identifications cards at Congressman Robert A. Brady's (D., Pa.) district office, located at 1907 S. Broad St. 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"I am pleased that my South Philadelphia office has been designated by SEPTA as a location where senior citizens can apply for the Senior Transit ID cards. The office is accessible and my staff is courteous and friendly," Congressman Brady said. "This is an important community service."

Applicants 65 years or older must provide a social security number, a proof of age document and a photo to the office as a part of the application process.

Seniors 65 years of age or older with a valid Medicare Card, Railroad Retirement Card or Transit ID Card can travel for free on SEPTA buses, trolleys and subway-elevated lines 24-hours-a-day every day of the year. In addition, seniors are charged only $1.00 to travel on SEPTA regional rail lines within Pennsylvania (fare waved for PACE, PACENET or Medical Assistance/Access card holders). Travel to stations outside the state (such as Trenton or West Trenton) to or from Center City cost $4.00 for tickets purchased prior to boarding and $4.50 for tickets purchased on-board. Currently, seniors travel at discounted fares during weekday off-peak hours (with regular fares charged from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.) and all day on weekends and holidays.
