Applauds his 100 percent voting record in support of education and equity for women and girls

PHILADELPHIA --- The American Association of University Women (AAUW) has recognized Congressman Robert A. Brady (D-PA) for his 100 percent voting record in the 110th Congress in support of education and equity legislation for women and girls.

Congressman Brady's voting record on issues important to women and families is contained in the AAUW Congressional Voting Record that scores votes on several pieces of legislation that became law, including bills that provided for an increase in the minimum wage; the largest increase in student aid since the G.I. bill; and investment in science, technology, engineering, and math education. In addition, the publication scores legislation that reflects other AAUW priorities such as improving pay discrimination law, expanding hate crimes prevention, and protecting access to reproductive health care.

Congressman Brady said, "My legislative priorities include education, economic security, civil rights, and responsible budgets and appropriations, and I am pleased that my legislative record is in sync with the priority issues of the AAUW."
